A senior Homeland Security official told me there are at least FIVE known assassination teams in our country targeting President Trump!
Requests for President Trump to have additional security went UNANSWERED and some people were even taken off of his Secret Service detail!
It may be time to consider private augmentation of President Trump’s security team so we can keep him safe.

Kamala Harris just dropped a brutal ad in North Carolina, tying Trump's praise of Mark Robinson—who called himself a “black Nazi” and spewed vile misogyny—right around Trump's neck. With clips of Robinson's disgusting comments and Trump lauding him, the ad exposes their toxic alliance, declaring them both unfit for North Carolina.

The Harris Campaign on the other hand, DIDN'T accept the information from Iran and notified the FBI.

Breaking News 3:29
In comments made on the forum of a porn website between 2008 and 2012, Mark Robinson called himself a "Black Nazi," said he supported reinstating slavery and - despite a recent history of anti-transgender rhetoric - said he enjoyed watching transgender pornography.
In another thread, commenters considered whether to believe the story of a woman who said she was raped by her taxi driver while intoxicated. In response, barbaraj.sobel

Robinson wrote, “and the moral of this story….. Don’t fk a white b*tch!”
On the porn website Nude Africa, Robinson also graphically described his own sexual arousal as an adult from the memory of secretly “peeping” on women in public gym showers as a teen, recounting the story as a memory he said he still fantasized about.

I had a weird realization today. I mean, sure, Donald John Bloviating Trump is a truly bottom-of-the-barrel, irredeemably reprehensible, profoundly ignorant meat suit. Just an unrepentant malignant narcissist cosplaying as an awful human being.
That wasn't the realization.
It's this: I actually wonder if James David Chucklefuck Vance might be even worse. Or, if not worse "worse," at least vastly more dangerous. This whole Springfield thing is some next level sociopathy.

↪ Maybe some of it is just watching Trump devolve into utter nonsense, too. Nonsense can still be dangerous, of course, especially when it has nukes, but he can barely string a sentence together anymore.
There was that moment in JDV's interview (yesterday?) with Dana Bash on CNN that struck me. She called him out on his lie and he paused, then sternly called her by name — "Dana…" — in a way that made him sound like an absolute sociopath.
I don't know. Random musings. Subject to change.

Lest Springfield get all the press for being the focus of the right's racist fever dream, the sheriff of Portage County in northeast Ohio would like a word.
From the article:
"In a Facebook post over the weekend, Portage County Sheriff Bruce Zuchowski told residents to record the address of anyone displaying pro-Harris yard signs so illegal immigrants can be sent to their homes."

A Vance staffer called Springfield City Manager Bryan Heck. Heck told the staffer the rumors were false.
But Vance had already posted about them — and kept doing so after his staffer's conversation with Heck. Trump amplified the lies the next night.

John David Souther (November 2, 1945 – September 17, 2024) was an American singer, songwriter, and actor. He wrote and co-wrote songs recorded by Linda Ronstadt and the Eagles. Souther was known for his songwriting abilities, especially in the field of country rock. He co-wrote some of the biggest hits for the Eagles, including "Best of My Love", "Victim of Love", "Heartache Tonight", and "New Kid in Town". "How Long", which appeared on Eagles' Long Road Out of Eden, was written by Souther and originally recorded on his first solo album in 1972. Souther recorded two major hit songs in his solo career: "You're Only Lonely" (1979) and "Her Town Too" (1981), a duet with his longtime friend James Taylor.

After making a “joke” asking why “no one is even trying to assassinate Biden/Kamala,” in a now-deleted post, the hashtag #DeportElonMusk is trending across X, his own platform, as many call him out for being a national security risk. Experts say that it raises concerns, especially given his substantial contracts with the US government through SpaceX. They also point to the more pressing risk of Musk’s potential to inspire further political violence.

This is why we need to eliminate the idea of elected law enforcement.

Sheriffs should be hired, based on a federal law enforcement guidelines and their office should be, BY LAW, strictly non-partisan and subject to immediate termination for any violation or failure to uphold their oath to the community.
There should be NO elected police in this country. This isn't the 1880s.

In what context would Musk's call for the assassination of the president and vice president be funny? Who's in this group? King Jung Un and Vladimir Putin? Donald Trump?
Musk's government contracts need to be suspended immediately. And if that means we're dependent on Boeing to get into space, so be it. This billionaire shitposter has WAY too much influence over our society.

Maybe, just maybe, being a candidate that now routinely incites violence, leading the party that nonsensically protects the means to commit it, doesn't necessarily guarantee that it will manifest against the target you have in mind.

When your party made it so no kid ever feels completely safe going to school, I'm not sure you're going to get the buckets of concern you seek for losing the illusion of absolute golf course security.

Put him in prison. Solitary confinement. He'll be safe there. I mean, he's gonna end up there eventually, right?
Of course, you'll have to keep him out of the general population because everyone there will want to end him too, but we can cross that bridge when we get to it.
In the mean time, lock him up! (To keep him safe - of course)

The first graders who survived the school shooting at Sandy Hook are now old enough to vote in their first presidential election.
Many are supporting Vice President Harris.
"It's no-brainer for me," says survivor Lilly Wasilnak, 18.
"I'm casting a vote for the 26 who can't."

Idaho’s abortion laws are forcing physicians to ignore their training and put patients’ lives at risk, Sarah Zhang writes. She spoke with doctors with a range of views on abortion who agreed that the current restrictions are “unworkable as medical care.”
